

I understand that photographs of people in close proximity with primates can lead to negative consequences for the animals' conservation and welfare. The prevalence of such photographs may seriously hinder conservation efforts and may mislead the public into believing that primates are safe to interact with and make suitable pets. As an individual/NGO, committed to primate conservation and welfare, I/we pledge to refrain from taking photographs of myself in close proximity to a primate and to posting any such photographs on social media, websites, printed media etc.
